PEDRO DE DIOS,

Applicant,

vs.

CARROLL'S TIRE WAREHOUSE; REDWOOD FIRE & CASUALTY INSURANCE COMPANY,

Defendants.

Case Nos. ADJ528481 (FRE 0244364) ADJ602408 (FRE 0247847)

> OPINION AND ORDER GRANTING PETITION FOR RECONSIDERATION AND DECISION AFTER RECONSIDERATION

Defendant seeks reconsideration of the June 17, 2013 Joint Findings And Award of the workers' compensation administrative law judge (WCJ), who awarded applicant reimbursement of "self-procured medical treatment for marijuana" pursuant to Finding number 8, which states in full as follows:

"It is found that applicant needed to self-procure medical treatment because medications were being denied, and he is to provide a statement of selfprocured costs for marijuana for the periods from the date of injury to the date of trial to the extent that he obtained marijuana by medical prescription."

The WCJ otherwise found that applicant incurred industrial injury to his back, neck and bilateral shoulders, but not his psyche, while working for defendant as a tire technician on May 24, 2006 (ADJ528481), and May 29, 2007 (ADJ602408), causing a period of temporary disability, 35% permanent disability in ADJ528481, 5% permanent disability in ADJ602408, and a need for future medical treatment.

Defendant contends that Finding number 8 and the award of reimbursement of applicant's self-procured marijuana purchases are improper because they are contrary to federal law and are not part of applicant's reasonable medical treatment. Defendant challenges no other part of the WCJ's June 17, 2013 decision.

The WCJ provided a Report and Recommendation on Petition for Reconsideration (Report) recommending that reconsideration be denied.

Reconsideration is granted and the portions of the WCJ's June 17, 2013 decision regarding reimbursement of self-procured marijuana are reversed as our Decision After Reconsideration. Health and Safety Code section 11362.785(d) provides that no health insurance provider or health care service plan is liable "for any claim for reimbursement for the medical use of marijuana," and defendant is not liable for applicant's cost of self-procuring marijuana in this case.

BACKGROUND

It is admitted that applicant incurred the orthopedic injuries found by the WCJ and defendant does not dispute the findings regarding temporary and permanent disability. However, defendant does dispute Finding number 8, which appears to obligate defendant to reimburse applicant for marijuana he selfprocured.

In his Report, the WCJ explains that in issuing Finding number 8 he relied upon the opinion of the parties' Agreed Medical Examiner Peter Mandell, M.D., who wrote in his report of January 27, 2012, as follows:

> "Mr. De Dios indicates that after I last saw him, he was getting treatment. He saw Dr. Singh for pain management. He would see him for checkups and medicine. He last saw him about a month ago. At that point, he concluded that medical treatment wasn't really helping him, so he has no intention of going back to see the doctors. This is nothing against Dr. Singh. All of the doctors haven't been able to help him.

> "What has helped him is when he went to Medicann in Fresno. They prescribe medical marijuana. He started doing that about a year after his injury. That's the only thing that seems to help. He sees those doctors once a year and last saw them in February or March 2011. He does have a new appointment coming up...

¹ We are aware of applicant's "Request For Findings And Award To Be Amended/Corrected" (Request) that was filed on July 1, 2013. The Request identifies an apparent clerical error in the WCJ's Opinion on Decision (Opinion) wherein the temporary and permanent disability indemnity rate is incorrectly stated to be "$181.96," contrary to the parties' stipulation that the rate is $187.96. We take no action on applicant's Request because statements in the Opinion are not findings, and the $187.96 stipulated rate is correctly stated in the body of the June 17, 2013 Joint Findings And Award. However, should the apparent error in the WCJ's Opinion interfere with proper payment of the indemnity due applicant, he may present the issue to the WCJ for correction upon return of the case to the trial level.

"Mr. De Dios indicates that since I last saw him, he did get conservative treatment, including pain management. He got some epidural injections. The only thing that's helped him, he tells me, is medical marijuana. That's prescribed through Medicann. In fact, he has reached the point where he no longer is interested in getting any other medical treatment except for the medical marijuana...

"I was asked my opinion about medical marijuana. I am not an expert on this subject. I do understand that certain individuals gain a great deal of relief from using that modality to treat their symptoms. Mr. De Dios says he is one of them. From an un-expert point of view, if this material helps him and others don't, he should be allowed to have it. I would be more than happy to defer to a medical marijuana expert to discuss this in greater detail."

DISCUSSION

The medical marijuana program that was promulgated in California through the Compassionate Use Act of 1996 (Act) authorizes an individual to use marijuana for medical purposes under certain specified conditions, including obtaining an identification card. (Health & Saf. Code, §§ 11365.2 et. seq.) Unless allowed by the Act, the furnishing of marijuana to anyone for any purpose is illegal under state law. (Health & Saf. Code, § 11360(a).) Moreover, Health and Safety Code section 11362.785(d) expressly provides that nothing in the Act, "shall require a governmental, private, or any other health insurance provider or health care service plan to be liable for any claim for reimbursement for the medical use of marijuana."

In this case, applicant did not show that he met any of the requirements of the Act for lawful use of medical marijuana. But even if he had, there is no expert medical opinion supporting his use of medical marijuana in this case. To the contrary, Dr. Mandell expressly notes in his January 27, 2012 report that he is not an expert on the subject, and that he is relying entirely upon applicant's statements in proffering an "un-expert point of view" that applicant "should be allowed to have it" if it works for him.

Opinion based upon conjecture instead of expertise is not substantial medical evidence that supports a finding that a defendant must pay for a specific treatment modality because it is reasonably required to cure or relieve the effects of an industrial injury. (Hegglin v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 4 Cal.3d 162 [36 Cal.Comp.Cases 93]; Place v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1970) 3 Cal.3d 372 [35 Cal.Comp.Cases 525].)

Lastly, the Act expressly excludes defendant from any obligation to provide medical marijuana in this case. (Health & Saf. Code, § 11362.785(d).) Unless and until the law changes, an employer is not liable under its workers' compensation obligation to provide reasonable medical treatment to reimburse an injured worker for the cost of marijuana he or she chose to self-procure.

For the foregoing reasons,

IT IS ORDERED that defendant's petition for reconsideration of the June 17, 2013 Joint Findings And Award of the workers' compensation administrative law judge is GRANTED.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED as the Decision After Reconsideration of the Appeals Board that the June 17, 2013 Joint Findings And Award of the workers' compensation administrative law judge is AFFIRMED, except that Finding number 8 and the Award are RESCINDED and the following are SUBSTITUTED in their places:

FINDINGS OF FACT

8. Defendant is not liable for the cost of marijuana self-procured by applicant.
