04/02/2015	276	MINUTE entry before the Honorable Young B. Kim: Motion hearing held. For the reasons stated in open court, Plaintiff's motion for an order directing the parties to continue discussions related to discovery 273 is denied. Despite the title of the motion, the city is seeking to have limited discovery move forward while the motions to dismiss are pending. The parties are not in agreement on the scope of this limited discovery. The court finds that the better and more efficient approach to discovery is to wait for the assigned District Judge's rulings on the pending motions to dismiss so that the parties can identify the surviving claims, if any, and define the scope of discovery permissible under Rule 26. 09/30/2015	388	MINUTE entry before the Honorable Young B. Kim: The city's motion to lift the discovery stay 289 is denied. In its motion, the city seeks to move forward with all discovery against Defendants Purdue Pharma L.P. and Purdue Pharma Inc. (together, "Purdue") because the assigned District Judge has ruled that the city is entitled to pursue a portion of its claims against Purdue. Specifically, on May 8, 2015, the assigned District Judge partially denied Purdue's motion to dismiss, ruling that only counts one and two out of the eleven-count complaint can proceed against it. (R. 288 at 34.) In August 2015 the city filed a second amended complaint reasserting many of the claims the District Judge dismissed. (R. 328.) At a status hearing on September 22, 2015, Purdue argued for the discovery stay to remain in place because it plans to move to dismiss the second amended complaint. Purdue argues that discovery should not begin until there is certainty as to the issues to be litigated in this case. The city countered at the status hearing that discovery should move forward because the core consumer fraud allegations against Purdue remain the same. The court agrees with Purdue's position on this point. While the city is correct in its representation that this case boils down to whether Purdue (and other pharma companies) engaged in fraud and deception when promoting and marketing its opiods, the contours of the allegations now pending against Purdue are immensely broader than the contours of the allegations that survived Purdue's first motion to dismiss. The only claims of fraud and deceptive practice that survived the first motion to dismiss were based on the allegation that Purdue misrepresented its products when promoting them through "their own websites." (R. 288 at 29.) The claims against Purdue in the second amended complaint, however, are much more robust and include many of the same counts and allegations dismissed from the first amended complaint. The court finds that if the second amended complaint remains in-tact after the anticipated motions to dismiss, the scope of discovery will be much more expansive than the scope of discovery this court would permit based only on the claims that survived the first motion to dismiss. The court weighed the possibility of permitting the parties to engage in discovery to address only the website allegations while waiting for a ruling on the anticipated motions to dismiss, but the issues pertaining to the websites constitute only a sliver of the claims against Purdue set forth in the second amended complaint. Starting any discovery now, before the District Judge has a chance to rule on the anticipated motions to dismiss the second amended complaint, would not promote efficiency in managing discovery in this case. Also, there is no suggestion that discovery pertaining to the websites allegedly controlled by Purdue would be destroyed or lost if discovery did not commence immediately. Although there can be some benefit from collecting necessary discovery during the motion to dismiss phase, here any such benefit does not outweigh the complication and added burden that necessarily would be imposed on the court and Purdue (and potentially the other pharma companies) from having three or more separate discovery tracks. For these reasons, the most prudent approach is to wait to see what claims and allegations survive the second round of motions to dismiss. The discovery stay remains. The status hearing scheduled for October 1, 2015, is cancelled. Mailed notice (ma,) (Entered: 09/30/2015)
